And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady.
Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time..."

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble,' so he got me 5 bottles. After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it.

DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW IS REPEALED

Senate Votes to Pass Bill Over President's Veto.

THE VOTE STANDS 57 TO 19

Chief Agitation for Its Repeal Came From Farmers and Labor Unions.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Repeal of the daylight saving act was accomplished today, the Senate voting to sustain the House in passing the repeal measure over President Wilson's veto. The vote was 57 to 19.

The repeal of the law which now takes its place among the very few which have been passed over a presidential veto, becomes effective after the clocks are turned back to normal in October. It will go down in legislative history as one of the few measures which have twice been vetoed by a President and became a law after all by the vote of more than two-thirds in both houses of Congress.

Agitation for repeal of the daylight savings law first came from farmers but recently has been buttressed by labor unions, mothers' clubs, rural school authorities and many other interests. Urban opinion also has become divided and officials of many cities and smaller towns have come out against the law. Congress has been flooded with petitions for repeal of the law, in collision with a counter flood urging retention of the statute.

Principal Objection.

Loss of time in farm labor was the principal objection raised to the law. This complaint came principally from farmers employing hired hands, and opponents of the law declare all farmers at some time during the summer season are employers of labor and suffer from the law.

The complaint of loss of labor is based principally on the shortening of the working day on the farm by the advancing of the clock one hour from March to October. The farmers' complaints declare they cannot adjust farm work to the advanced time because, with the clock advanced an hour, farm work cannot be begun as early in the morning as under the normal time schedule and must close an hour earlier. This is because the dawn on the ground in the morning prevents plowing and other farm labor under the advanced time schedule.

Loss of an Hour

Farm hands—hired men, etc.—it is contended, will not work after 6 p. m. clock time, or at most 7 o'clock. Advancing of the clock an hour, therefore, it is declared, caused a loss of an hour's working time at the end of the day, when the ground is in good condition for work, but with farm labor refusing to work after 6 or 7 o'clock, clock time.

Individual farmers, as well as those employing help, also declare they suffer from great confusion from the advanced time. Various farm activities it is said, must coordinate with clock time in adjacent towns and cities. Farmers, it is explained must deliver produce to trains, frequently early in the morning. If the farmers work by sun time, in order to meet ground conditions, milking of cows, etc., it is said they suffer hardships in rising and working an hour earlier in order to load wagons of produce to meet trains. They also declare cows, chickens and other farm animals cannot adjust themselves to the new clock time but require attention according Hall's Catarrh Medicine was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years. It is composed of some of the best tonics known, combined with some of the best blood purifiers. ### Rooster vs. Clock.

"The roster crowds regardless of the daylight saving law, one farmer declared in a petition to Congress.

Mothers' objection to the daylight law are based upon confusion of conditions in the home and, fundamentally, loss of sleep by children. They declare children are awakened an hour earlier than usual under the law and lose another hour's sleep at night, because of refusal or inability to sleep during the daylight of the evening. These conditions, it is said, cause loss of weight, fretfulness, nervous trouble and other ailments of children—and the mothers, too, from contact with the children.

Labor Union's Protest.

Protests against the law from labor unions and workmen were based upon the requirement of the daylight law for earlier rising. Wives of workmen, it is said, are compelled often to rise before daylight and prepare breakfast by artificial light. Some labor unions say the hour's added daylight at the end of the day does not compensate for the loss of sleep and early-morning hardships of the advanced clock time.

Rural school authorities object to the law because, they say, it is a hardship both on pupils and teachers, who often have to walk from one to six miles to school and must arise before daylight to arrive on time. Objections of town and city officials are varied. Some towns in agricultural regions, observing farmers' opposition to the law, have refused to adjust their clocks. Maintenance of the "old" time in such towns causes confusion in meeting trains and other civic affairs. Other municipalities, principally in the middle western time zone, passed ordinances advancing time pieces an hour, adopting time standards of the eastern zone, before the daylight saving law was enacted. The law, therefore, required these "central time" cities to advance their time pieces still another hour. Some observed and some declined to observe the law, making for further confusion.

To the argument of champions of the daylight law, that it makes for actual economic gain, in savings of light and fuel, opponents of the law contend that really an economic loss develops—that farm production is curtailed and that while fuel and lights are saved in cities there is a greater loss on farms, where lamps in the home and lanterns in the barns must be used an hour earlier.
